Airport Information

Flights take off from Aerodrome de La Roche sur-Yon-Les Ajoncs, located near the sea on the western coast of France. The aerodrome is roughly a three-hour train ride from Paris. The closest international airport is about a 45-minute drive away, in the town of Nantes.

La Roche-sur-Yon has a population of about 55,000 and is the capital of Vendee. The town was founded by Napoleon and offers much to see and do.

The Planes

Extra 330 LX

In the 1980's, champion aerobatic pilot Walter Extra set out to design the perfect competition aircraft. Today, the German company he started produces some of the world's most popular aerobatic aircraft. The Extra 330 LX is capable of withstanding +/- 10 g's.

The TB30 Epsilon

The all metal light military trainer was built for use by the French Air Force in the 1980's. It features tandem seating and sliding cockpits and was pitched to the US as a T-34 replacement.

The L-39 Albatros

The Czech-made L-39 is a high-performance military jet trainer produced by Aero Vodochody. The single-engine, subsonic jet aircraft has been used by more than 30 air forces to prepare fighter pilots for air combat.
